¡Olé! Stuttgart celebrates Hispanic heritage

By Mildred Green

A celebration composed of music, friends, family and food – in many Hispanic communities, this would be considered a typical weekend gathering.

For the community members who packed Stuttgart's Patch Community Club Sept. 24, this scenario was the centerpiece of the area's celebration of Hispanic-American Heritage Month.

Celebrating, learning

With educational displays, a buffet of native delicacies, a fashion show and entertainment provided by the Mariachi Acapulco Band, this year's event featured quite a mix of Hispanic culture.

Walking through the doors of the club, attendees were greeted by the smell of food mingling in the air with music that might have inspired even the non-dancers to move a little.

While hoping to provide Stuttgart community members with a joyful celebration, the organizers of the event also wanted to share a bit of Hispanic history and culture with them, said 6th Area Support Group Adjutant Andres Rivera.

During his opening remarks, Rivera mentioned that the theme for this year's event pays tribute to the many cultural contributions that Hispanics have made and continue to make.
